

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A brush cleaning and storing apparatus, particularly for storing of paint brushes and coating brushes and brushes of like 5 material, in such manner that the brush can be introduced into a solvent and then rubbed against a plate having a surface which aids in removal of the paint or similar substance. In addition, the apparatus and the method provide for suspending the brush in a housing of the apparatus. In this way, the solvent is contained 10 within the housing, thereby avoiding environmental nuisance problems associated with the disposing of the solvent, and which also enables the reuse thereof.
